There are no dry Sundays in Brooklyn under aide door of a saloon conveniently open. It may been account of the laxity which is supposed to prevail in the heat of a political campaign that the side doors were wider open yesterday than eo any Sunday since Mayor Schleren took up the reins of government at the beginning of the Churchgoers noticed last night that most of the salocus on the leading throughfares snowed brighter lights than usual through the openings in the blinds on the front windows, and that no pretence was made to close the side antrances.

The police authorities don't seem to have been aware that the law was being violated, for not single one of the 3,000 saloon keepers in the city was arrested, although it is safe to say that two-thirds of them were well patronized. A saloen keeper gave this explanation of their fail-

"Mayor Schieren has succeeded in pretty nearly solving the saloon problem. While campaign was in progress a year ago Brewer Schaurmann the assurthat the saloon keepers would not that the Excise law would be administered in a liberal German spirit. We have no cause to complain of the treatment we have received from the police, and things have moved along smoothly. Of course, business goes along nicely on Sunday, and our customers can come in at all hours through the side doors. If the Mayor was to close up the all-night saloons I think it would be of great benefit to the people at large, and would meet the approval of the vast majority of the saloon keepers themselves. There are scores of saloons, and a dozen of them are within sizenit of 500 yards of the City Hall, which are never shut up for a single minute from the beginning of the year to the end, and why the police authorities do not give them any attention is a mystery. Perhaps when Senator Bradley brings over the Lexow committee he will be able

by a mystery, retained to clear it up."

When asked how the saloon keepers were going to act politically this year he said: "The Republicans have not antagonized us, and well not hurt their city or county ticket, but we are going to vote almost solidly, as usual, for the Democratic candidates on the State and Assembly tickets. We are for David B. Hill almost sembly tickets. We are for David B. Hill almost to a man.

It was reported in Brooklyn yesterday that the influence of the Police and Excise departments was being used in the interests of Granville W. Harman, the Republican candidate for County Register. Mr. Harman was Deputy Police Commissioner until he got his nomination, when he handed in his resignation. Commissioner Welles has not filled the vacancy yet, and, in case he is defeated, Mr. Harman will probably reoccupy it. It is alleged that high police and excise officials have been at work for Mr. Harman, and that some of them have gone so far as to insist that saloon keepers in their precincts will find it to their advantage to exhibit Mr. Harman's portrait. Commissioner Welles says that if such action has been taken he has no knowledge of it, and that it would be against his policy and that of Mayor Schieren to tolerate it. Although anxious for Mr. Harman's elevation, he would not allow any police interference to bring it about.

WHAT TO DO WITH GARBAGE. Mayor Gilroy's Commission Not Quite Ready Yet to Report.

The investigations of the committee appointed by Mayor Gilroy to examine the systems for the disposal of garbage in various cities and report oh a suitable method for New York to adopt are not completed, although the committee has travelled several thousand miles on its mission President Charles G. Wilson of the Board of Health said yesterday that the committee had still to visit Philadelphia, Lowell, and Yonkers, but that these places being near by, the tripe could be made each in a day, and so an early report was probable. In Philadelphia, he said, there were four plants of various patterns for the cremation of garbage and one for its utilization, and the committee desired to inspect completed no report would be determined upon. The announcement that the committee had agreed upon the Dixon system in operation at Atlanta, Ga., Mr. Wilson said was unauthorized and incorrect. A conference of the committeemen is to be held to-morrow, when they will go over the great mass of data which has accumulated as a result of their various examinations, compar notes and ideas, and get the information co result of their various examinations, compare notes and ideas, and get the information collected into shape for presentation to the Mayor. "The committee," said ex-Mayor Franklin Edson, who is one of its members, "will probably not recommend the adoption of any particular plan for the disposal of the city's garbage, but rather some one of the general methods. In most of the cities cremation is the method. The first cost of this method is very much less than that of utilization, but there is very little return in a monetary way for the outlay. In the utilization of the garbage for grease and fertilizing material there is a large return, perhaps enough to over the cost. Before a method for New York is decided upon there is a very serious question to be considered, that of the separation of sahes and garbage, if cremation be employed no separation is necessary. If utilization be the process the garbage and the ashes must be separated.

But we must confer and arrange our information. MILLINERS HER VICTIMS.

Miss Morrowitz Caught After Carrying Out Long Series of France.

Since the first of the month numerous complaints have been lodged with Inspector Me-Laughlin at Police Headquarters against a mysterious young woman who, by an ingenious variation of a very old trick, was doing a profitable business swindling milliners. As far as the police know, the young woman's first victim was a Mrs. Irene Maguire, who has a place at 324 West 125th street.

On the afternoon of Oct. 3 a young woman of apparent wealth and respectability called at Mrs. Maguire's place, in a brougham. She purchased two hats for $15, said she was Miss Howard, and ordered the hats sent to her at the Hotel Hamilton, Eighth avenue and 125th street.

" By the by," she added as she was leaving the store, "please give the messenger change for a fifty-dollar bill."

An hour before, the same woman had engaged a suite of rooms at the hotel mentioned for herself and grandmother. She especially stipulated that each room should have a door opening on the hallway. She registered as Miss Howard, and, telling the clerk that her grandmother and her trunks would soon arrive, she mother and her trunks would soon arrive, she went out shopping. Mrs. Maguire sent one of her apprentices to deliver the hats, with $35 in small bills. Miss Howard received the girl in her room, took the hats and went into an adjoining room, where a conversation ensued between two persons. Presently she returned without the hats and said:

"My grandmother likes the hats, and we will keep them. Did you bring the change?"
The girl handed over the $35, and Miss Howard, remarking "I'll return in a minute," went into the other room.

After waiting for a long time the messenger finally ventured to look into the adjoining room. No one was there. Then she hurried down to the hotel clerk, who, in answer to her inquiries, exclaimed in surprise: "Why, Miss Howard went out about fifteen minutes ago." Mrs. Maguire lost no time in notifying Inspector McLaughlin of the case.

The next morning Millie C. L. Wakeman of 705 Sixth avenue reported that she had been robbed of a $7 bonnet and $13 in cash under similar circumstances, by a young woman answering the description of Miss Howard.

robbed of a $7 bonnet and $13 in cash under similar circumstances, by a young woman an-swering the description of Miss Howard. The swindler was stopping at the St. Cloud Hotel, registered as Mrs. Mott. The same afternoon Timothy O'Donoghue, a milliner at 4 West Fourteenth street, was robbed of two hats worth $18.50 and $31.50. On Oct. 15 the same woman, this time under the name of Mrs. Duval, got a $5 hat and $15 from Mme. Gottlieb, a milliner at 2.182 Third avenue.

$18.50 and $31.50. On thet, 15 the same woman, this time under the name of Mrs. Duval, got a $5 hat and $15 from Mme. Gottlieb, a milliner at 2,182 Third avenue.

The following day a woman calling herself Mrs. Fay engaged a suite of rooms at the Pierrepont House, in Montague street, Hrooklyn, and bought two imported hats for $48 at Gabriel Baum's store at 418 Fullon street. At her request they were sent to the hotel with change for $100. Mrs. Fay secured the hats and the $52.

Three days later the swindler, this time calling herself Mrs. Allen, hired rooms at the Savoy Hotel.

She drove to Mrs V. Loscomb's millinery stores at 1,908 Thira avenue, and bought two hats for $20. They were sent to her with change for $100, but the messenger refused to give up either hats or money until she had been paid. Thereupen Mrs. Allen took the messenger in a carriage to Third avenue and 100th street, near Mrs. Loscomb's place, and dismissing her told her to return to the hotel at night. The girl did so, but Mrs. Allen could not be found.

On Friday the detectives got on the track of the woman, and on Saturday afternoon they arrested her in the street at 111th street and Lexington avenue. She made a great fuss over her arrest. When questioned by Inspector McLaughlin, however, she became confused, and finally, after a fit of hysterical weeping, confessed that she had committed all the thefits. She said she was Millie Horrowitz, 21 years old, and lived at 347 East 114th street. She told the inspector that she lost most of the money she had obtained, playing the races.

Yesterlay morning Justice Ryan in the Tombs Police Court remanded the woman until to-day, in the afternoon all her victims called at Police Headquarters and identified her. Horrowitz is a milliner and was formerly an intimate friend of Mrs. Blum, a milliner in Broadway.

About 11 weeks ago she visited Mrs. Blum as he was arrested in Albany. She was held for trial, but after she had been in the Tombs about two weeks the complaint against her was dismissed and she wa

Michael Walker Found in a Vacant Lot with His Jaw Broken and Skull Fractured Michael Walker, aged 27 years, of 57 Underhill avenue, Brooklyn, is in the Seney Hospital in a critical condition resulting from a beating h received at the hands of John H. While passing through a wacant lot in Fourth avenue Glynn attacked Walker, and after knocking him down kicked him in the head and body until he became insensible.

He then took to flight, but was subsequently arrested. Two boys found Walker in the lot and had him removed to the hospital. His jaw is broken and his skull apparedtly fractured.

The applause with which the andience at the Metropolitan Opera House last night so liberally able to come, and also that she showed no trace of the illness which caused her absence last week. The aria from "La Traviata," "Ah fors lui," has never been more brilliantly sung than Melba gave it last night, and Deliber's "Filles de Cadix," and the Elizabeth prayer from "Tannhäuser" were as brilliant in their own manner of performance. There was no doubt of Mme. Meiba's popularity as a concert singer last year, and this season it appears to have in-creased, if the enthusiasm of her reception can be trusted. In view of this it will be interesting to observe her appearance in opera. Last season, despite her personal popularity as a singer, the audiences which went to hear her in opera were never larce, sare, when she sang in conjunction audiences which went to hear ber in opera were never large, save when she sang in conjunction with the strongest casts which could be made up in the company. Mme. Calvé drew large audiences whoever sang with her.

The singers associated with Mme. Melba last night were again Mme. Scalchi and MM. Plançon and Maugulère. The former has never sung better than in the air from Gounod's "Queen of Sheba," and M. Maugulère was better in the ballad he sang as an encore than in the aria from "Zampa." The orchestra under Anton Seidl played a less interesting programme than usual and with considerably less skill. The accompaniment of the 'cello in the Verdi aria was notably unsatisfactory.

Exchange for a Bad 850 Bill.

Charles Druis of 148 Columbia street, Brooklyn, made the acquaintance of a stout, well who was in exuberant spirits over the finding as he said, of a $50 bill. The stranger saked Mr Druis to go to a store to get the bill changed, and the latter agreed to do so after leaving his gold chain, valued at $20, with the stranger as a guarantee that he would return. Mr. Druis did return and in a hurry, for the storekeeper told him the bill was a counterfeit, but he couldn't find the stranger.

A Contest Over the Millionaire's Estate-Was Re Divorced?

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28,-It caused surprise in Baltimore's business and high social circles yesterday when the news came that a legal action had been begun in Brooklyn contending that the late William Sinclair of Catonsville had two wives. Mr. Sinclair came to Baltimore from Brooklyn

In 1871. He had been in the hemp and wooden ware business in New York. Soon after his arrival here he succeeded Gen. O'Dennell as President of the Consolidated Gas Company. About fifteen years ago it is said Mr. Sinclair was di-vorced from his first wife, and a few years later married Mrs. Phorbe S. Taylor, the daughter of married Mrs. Phobe S. Laylor, the daughter of Col. Coleman, the owner and proprietor of the Carrollton Hotel of this city.

While separated from his first wife, but before applying for a divorce Mr. Sinclair purchased a property in Florida and gave it to her. It is said that the first Mrs. Sinclair died there three years ago. Mr. Sinclair died last July, leaving an estate valued at $1,700,000. He left no will, and half of that amount will go to his widow.

leaving an estate valued at $1,70,000. He left no will, and half of that amount will go to his widow.

Mrs. Phobe S. Sinclair, the second wife and widow, lives at Catonsville. The estate has been in the hands of the administrators for over two months. Mr. Sinclair left relatives in Brooklyn, who are heirs to half the estate.

A despatch from Jacksonville, Fla., to-night says that William Sinclair married Rosalle Perpall, about eighteen years ago. The Peroall family is one of the oldest and best known families in Florida. Mrs. Sinclair was a devout Catholic, and it issaid that that was the bone of contention that eventually caused a separation in 1880.

Mrs. Rosalie Sinclair resided at St. Augustine for several years, it was generally believed that she was very wealthy. In 1888 she went to Atlanta, and her friends here lost track of her until three years ago. She was then taken to a hospital in St. Augustine, where she died after a few weeks' illness. She was the first Mrs. Sinclair.

Just before death Mrs. Sinclair write a will.

Sinclair.

Just before death Mrs. Sinclair wrote a will, bequestling property, which she valued, at $300,000, to Catholic institutions, but only about $15,000 worth has been found. The physician who attended Mrs. Sinclair in her last illpess and witnessed the will, says she was un loubtedly of unsound midd. F. E. Perpall of St. Angustine was made executor of the will, and represents the other seven heirs in Florida. Their attorneys say that no divorce was obtained by Mr. Sinclair, that no record of it has been found in New York, Maryland, or Florida, and that their clients will be able to secure one-half of the property of the millionaire. THE LUCANIA'S SMALL-POX CASES.

Dr. Talimadge Says There Was No Need to Detain Her at Quarantine. There was comment yesterday over the reease from Quarantine on Friday evening, after a detention of only fifty-five minutes, of the Cunard steamship Lucania, two of whose deck stewards were U. of small-poy. It was recalled that the North German Lloyd steamship Kronpring Frederick Wilhelm, which arrived from Mediterranean ports with 499 steerage passengers on Oct. 14, was detained three days because an Italian immigrant in the steerage had small-pox, and that all the other steerage pas-cause an Italian immigrant in the steerage had small-pox, and that all the other steerage passengers were sent to Hoffman Island, where they will be detained until to-morrow.

Dr. Tallmadge, who has charge of Quarantine in the absence of Health Officer Jenkins abroad, said that he did not think it was necessary to hold the Lucania's 632 steerage passengers.

When the Lucania arrived Dr. Pointon, the ship's surgeop, informed Dr. Tallmadge that two of the deck stewards were ill, and that, suspecting small-pox from the symptoms, he had isolated them at once. Dr. Tallmadge satisfied himself that from the long period of isolation and the thoroughness of the precautions taken there was no danger of infection, so far as the passengers were concerned. He ordered all the deck stewards to be put under observation, and took off the two patients. It was on Tuesday, Oct. 23, when the Lucania had been three days out from Liverpool, that Deck Stewards Cecil Browne and Charles Phillips came to Dr. Pointon and complained of pains in the back and head, accompanied by nausea. There was no trace of any cruption on their bodies, but the Dector ordered their immediate isolation in the ship's hospital. Nearly two days clapsed before a slight rash appeared on Browne, and shortly afterward it also was noticed on Phillips. At the time the vessel reached Quarantine Browne was in the pustulate stage and Phillips in the vesicular stage. Both patients were removed to the Reception Hospital at East Sixteenth street, and orders were issued to confine and isolate the other cighteen deck stewards on board the vessel at her pier.

Nearly all the Lucania's steerake passengers were brought ashore yesterday from Ellis Island.

The rooms had previously been furnished by the bridegroom Shortly after the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Keifer at their home a party of young men surrounded the house, armed with tin pans and cow bells, and began to make a terrific noise. No response was made, and in order to force recognition the young men threw pebbles at the windows, until finally a larger pebble than usual crashed through Ne glass. In an instant up flew the lower sash, and a ghostly figure threw something into the crowd of young men, with the exclamation. Take that. It was hot water, and the seremalers scattered in every direction. In a short tim, they gathered near the house again, and, at a 4xfe distance, threw stones at the windows. Before they stopped there were fourteen panes of ylass broken. The bridegroom wanted to go out and fight the crowd, but was prevented by the entreaties of the bride, who had become hysterical from fright.
